

A detailed photograph of a workshop wall made of vertical wooden planks. The wall is densely packed with various hand tools. At the top, several hammers with wooden handles are mounted. Below them, there are wrenches, a large pair of pliers, and various metal blocks and pieces. A long, thin wooden handle, possibly for a mallet or a chisel, stands vertically in the center. To the right, a glass bottle and a small metal container are visible. On the right side of the image, there are wooden shelves filled with more tools, including what looks like a set of files or a collection of small metal pieces. The overall scene is one of a well-used, organized workshop.
